STOW SETS NEW LOW FIXED RATE FOR NATURAL GAS AGGREGATION PROGRAM

Stow, Ohio (March 11, 2019) – City of Stow officials would like to announce that they have set a new rate of $3.183/Mcf for gas consumed April 2019 through March 2020. Residents and small businesses should look for a letter from Constellation explaining the new rate and the various means to join the program.

Mayor John Pribonic said, "We are pleased to have been able to secure this low rate for our residents and businesses. This rate provides price protection for an entire year and gives customers the ability to opt-out free of charge at any time for any reason."

Anyone currently enrolled in the program will receive a simple rate-change notice from Constellation explaining the rate, terms and conditions of the offer. These accounts will remain in the program unless they contact Constellation. Anyone who has not yet chosen a supplier, will receive an opt-out notice from Constellation explaining the rate, terms and conditions, and methods for opting out of the City's aggregation program. These accounts will be added to the program unless they opt out as indicated in the letter.

Customers served by another supplier are eligible to receive the new program rate as well. These customers must contact Constellation in order to join the program and can do so calling Constellation toll-free at 844-516-5250. These customers should be aware of the obligations in their existing contract before joining the City of Stow program, as many suppliers charge a penalty for early termination. Customers wishing to join the program must be in good standing with their bill payment and cannot be part of the utility's percentage of income payment program (PIPP).

"Constellation is proud to continue to provide residents and small businesses in the City of Stow with price certainty and the same effortless experience we offer all customers," said Kevin Klages, senior vice president, Mass Markets, for Constellation. "As a national leading competitive energy supplier with deep roots in serving Ohio customers, we look forward to supplying natural gas to Stow's residents and small businesses."

The City of Stow is pleased to have made this program possible but asks that you do not call the City offices, which are not equipped to handle a large volume of calls. City officials ask that residents contact Constellation directly at 844-516-5250 with questions about the program, or visit <http://www.constellation.com/oh-stow>.
